A Higher Wisdom

By Ariba Ellis

The foes and friends I were would have found favor and happy abandon in the melee of the truth I feel.

Yet, present wisdom sees another dimension, and cries out for peace in the confusion of this, our natural world.

To look at our phenomenal realm—with our eyes closed—
all we see is the landscape that seems, to us, nothing.
Prudent providence of thought proceeds, and time is as it always was.

Yet, to feel is to know a place of gentle showers of happiness and cool, soft winds of joyful emotions.
These ephemeral zephyrs and placid mists signal the coming of one who has so quickly shown to me a gentle yet powerful, critical, vital light.

Words nor thoughts, ideas nor models, can describe what this light is.

My mortal eye is blind to this intimate state of reality.

We try our best to place such emotion in books and philosophies.

But, the light can only be seen in a warm place that only knows true feelings.
And in such a place have I found this one.

But fear changes those showers to chilling rain bringing on the storm clouds and great walls making a great dam, choking the life blood from the soil and the soul of our heart-felt place.

My fear and the fear of this friend,
are strangely shared between us.
We both hear the call of reason—its deafening blast like a thundering storm shaking us and striking us down with gray waves of cold, cruel logic.
Such is the wisdom which guides us;
its core—shaped according to the world of the perceived.

This is another, different place;
where all is dictated and directed,
tried, judged, and affected by the hurt and the abandoned in the past, the obligated and the dedicated of the present,
and the fear of exploration of the future.

We must both answer the call of things we may touch, see, and hear.
These things which lay outside the land unknown;
our place of heart and mind.

The cry of present wisdom must be heeded.
Yet, by doing so, the invisible world
we have to ourselves can be lost.
And so will diminish a part of our lives.
We cannot risk the chance of destroying the unmet region of our feeling's intersection.

Let us look to a higher wisdom which can give voice to our sentient logic and expression to our youthful feeling within the intersection of prudent action.

We know the world of the zero-sum game of winners and losers; victors and vanquished.

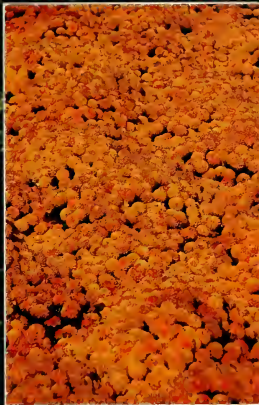

This is how we live and what we think.
Yet, our new world shall die of such choking thoughts.
We must invoke a wisdom which will let us find sounder truths in all our shared realms.

Let not one world be lost for the sake of the other.

For the Record

We have walk-in closets, because you walk in the door and you're in the closet.

Trinity sophomore Bill Schloss on the new East Campus dorms

We just got flat whipped out there today.

Maryland head football coach Mark Duffner in reaction to Duke's 49-16 victory Saturday

This is much better than watching a bunch of striking, overpaid jerks.
Trinity senior Jeff Parks while watching the last Durham Bulls regular season game

It's a crazy city, and you never know who could be waiting for you in the bathroom.

Trinity junior Lisa Attman on her lodgings in the Duke in New York program

I was so into it that I didn't realize it was the Rat.

Trinity freshman George Nahra on The Underground

At no point did I lie to anyone. At no point did I deceive anyone.

Trinity senior Rohit Kumar, president of the Duke chapter of Sigma Gamma Delta Honor Society, on questions about the legitimacy of his organization

The way The Chronicle presented everything really colored the issue.
Engineering sophomore Lani Hsiao on the Sigma Gamma Delta honor society

Just because you believe in fiscal conservatism, that doesn't mean you must also restrict a woman's reproductive freedom.

Richard Moore, Democratic candidate for the House of Representatives

They came into our field and beat us fair and square.

Ansion Dorrance, coach of the North Carolina women's soccer team

A lot of people go there to gossip and possibly to see people they would be interested in hooking up with.

Trinity senior Barrett Boston, on the Deryl Hart Reading Room

I think the [Atlantic Coast Conference] will have five bowl teams this year and I think Duke will be one of them.

Mike Schulze, director of public relations for the Hall of Fame Bowl

The main thing is, we want to get home safely.

Head football coach Fred Goldsmith after his team lost 59-20 to Florida State

There have been other instances of crime in the neighborhood, but never anything so random or to someone so innocent.

Trinity junior Kathy Mills, on the recent shooting death of two-year-old Shaquana Atwater in the Few Gardens housing development

I waver between cautious optimism and abject depression.

Karin Johanson, Pacific Coast director for Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, on her party's prospects in today's elections

I'll tell you one damn thing. We're gonna have two beer trucks.

Tom D'Armi, director of games, operations and facilities, on festivities planned for the first night of homecoming

[The University] is generally not a well-known place in the world. It's not that we have a bad reputation. We just don't have any reputation at all.

Peter Lange, professor of political science and vice provost for academic and international affairs, on the importance of internationalization at the University

As long as I can remember, beer ads and athletics went hand in hand.

Men's basketball co-captain Cherokee Parks

I don't think I've been in anything as wild as this.

Duke Head Coach Fred Goldsmith on Saturday's 41-40 loss to UNC

When I heard about [Helms], I said, 'Well, now you're going to have to come.'

University President Emeritus Terry Sanford, on President Clinton's decision not to speak at the opening of the new PPS institute in light of Sen. Jesse Helms' comment that Clinton would need a bodyguard if he visited North Carolina

Wisconsin—they're the Badgers, right?

Well, I know Wisconsin's famous for cheese but I don't really know much about their football team. I guess we'll find out when we watch film of them.
Junior free safety Ray Farmer, on Duke's opponent in the Hall of Fame Bowl

There's not one minute that I don't think about the war and my friends.

Trinity freshman and former resident of Bosnia-Herzegovina, Alma Hakirevic

As I heard all those kind words, it almost felt like being at one's funeral. I'm glad that's not the case.

President Emeritus Terry Sanford, at the dedication of the new public policy building bearing his name

from The Chronicle

I can't tell you how to live, but I am the person who calls your mother when you get killed.

Janet Dickerson, vice president of student affairs, attesting to the need to change the University's alcohol policy

We've begun the process of thinking about reassignment.

Bill Burig, assistant dean of student development and coordinator of housing assignments, on the implementation of the new residential plan

The idea that those of my colleagues in the Department of Economics who are running large numbers of grants, and students, and post docs, and are producing work of the very highest quality in the different areas, can go and hang out at a coffee shop at 10 a.m., or sit around with a group of undergraduates in a dormitory common room at 9 p.m., is unrealistic.
Interim Dean of Faculty of Arts and Sciences Roy Weintraub, on undergraduate education at a research university

I'm not going to say we go over there to party; we go over there more to take their women.

Trinity senior Jamal Ellis, cornerback, on why the football team goes to Chapel Hill

I didn't think they just wanted to beat us up. I thought they wanted to kill us.

Trinity junior Karriem Hassan, on a riot at the American University in Cairo

I hope this is the bottom. I hope we can't get any further down.

Senior Cherokee Parks, co-captain of the men's basketball team, following Wednesday's loss to N.C. State

We just think of how arrogant Duke has been in the past and we say, "Well, it's funny."

Justin Scheef, sports editor of The Daily Tar Hell, on Duke's losing streak

They ignored everything. We are just not taken into consideration at all.
Graduate student Susan Timberlake, on the University's new residential plan

It's no longer the attitude of, 'Yeah, those are the jerks that live next to us.'
Trinity junior Richard Boykin, Phi Delta Theta's representative to the Eden's quad council, on how the council has brought the quad's living groups together

It was destiny for us to win. It's something you dream about—hitting the last shot to beat Carolina at home.
Women's basketball junior center Alison Day, on her buzzer-beating, game-winning shot against UNC Wednesday night

This was the greatest game I've ever been a part of.
UNC forward Jerry Stackhouse, on Carolina's double-overtime victory over Duke Thursday night

The noise level at Duke is probably illegal, if they got the fire chief in there.
Florida State men's basketball coach Pat Kennedy, on the raucous crowds in Cameron Indoor Stadium during men's basketball games

I have no qualms about admitting publicly and visibly that I've made a mistake. And if students sit in my office day and night to ask me for something I think is wrong, I know how to deal with that; this was not the case this time.

President Nan Keohane on her decision to create a vice-presidential post

When a baby grows up, he gets slapped on the hand for doing things wrong. Well, we've been slapped nine times. So now we wanted to slap somebody back.

Freshman Ricky Price on Duke's win over Georgia Tech Thursday night

If people can't think of more to do on weekend nights than kegs, that's a sad commentary on the imagination of the student body.

Lewis Wardell, assistant director of Duke Public Safety, on the current state of social life on campus

I have never really encouraged, never wanted to be a part of, a search for women in the sciences.

Kathleen Smith, associate professor of biological anthropology and anatomy and vice provost for academic programs, on University initiatives to recruit minority faculty

I can honestly say that was the best women's basketball game I've ever been a part of, ever witnessed. It may be the best game I've ever witnessed.

Duke women's basketball head coach Gail Goestenkors, following Sunday's Duke-Alabama quadruple-overtime game

The ad that said 'no men allowed' really said 'no faggots allowed.'

Trinity junior Seth Persily, president of the Duke Gay, Bisexual and Lesbian Association, on Thursday's 'Ladies night' at the Underground

... when you wake up, you feel as though you have made a terrible mistake ...
DSG president-elect Peggy Cross, comparing the residential plan to a root canal

How much worse can this residential plan be than the old one?

Trinity sophomore Zeyad Mobassaleh

Chemist

Chemistry is a magical science. Textbooks reveal the precision of its equations while laboratories demonstrate the mystery of its frontiers. Research involves the delicate manipulation of processes invisible to the human eye, posing constant challenge and allure. Chemists, by describing the macroscopic in microscopic terms, bring to the finite and chaotic physical world a fundamental system marked by elegance and simplicity.

All My Yesterdays

By Atiba Ellis
With J. B. Busby

As I was walking away from the end of my yesterday,
I felt content to leave these days behind.

It seemed an easy journey full of happy, soul-singing days and worked mixed with joy.

Those times leave only rosy-red tinted memories, which pronounce in sounds and feelings a picture of life well-lived; a picture oh-so-easily packed away in books and mementos.

Yet, for a moment, there seemed to be more to this than those happy, harried hurried days. Moments of elation, which formerly was had all around me,
stretch into longer days, wider journeys,
and somber nights.

For any moment's picture in which I could see myself smiling, laughing;
I also remember an unpictured hour spent in hushed silence and chained toil.
A second of gaiety, a leaving of mirth,
a fleeting moment of love— these pleasant pictures mix with negatives of disappointment, worry, anger, shame.
All these suddenly run along the dark edge of my memory.

These fluid recollections of patience and toil fill rapidly the gaps— with shades of sad blue days and verdant moments of growth—that left the rosy stained-glass moment empty. Now the picture is complete—full of shadow and light, colors finery and frigid, remembrances caustic and cherished. Dull and blurry picture-thoughts seem, for a moment, clear.

Briefly, sunshine and tumult, storm clouds and rainbows, unite together as one whole substance.

Those days seem a little more valuable, now.
They possess more than a book could know or a picture would say. Merely walking away now seems not enough— I must carry all my yesterdays with me at this end, and at my new beginnings.

Produced by your friends and ours at Hunter Publishing, Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

The cover of the this edition of The Chanticleer is made with a really neat Rainbow Three Cordovan material over a mega-thick one hundred fifty point board, as if you didn't already know. It is custom blind embossed with a dye created by the seeing artists of Jostens. The end sheets are eighty pound paper which is tinted and textured. The senior portraits photographer is Strawbridge Studios of Durham, North Carolina. All black and white photographs are halftones scanned on Fuji Scanart. No duotones have been used. All color photographs were printed in four color from color transparencies taken exclusively on Fujichrome Velvia and Provia films, because they're better than their competitors' films. The four color sections, commonly known in this book as the Prologue and Epilogue, were printed using spot color with both gloss and matte varnishes. If you are still reading this, you need a life.

This edition of The Chanticleer is Dedicated to Jerry L. Dollar

in honor of his unending sacrifice, wise guidance, unparalleled discipline, incredible strength, incomparable perseverance, and fatherly ability to successfully demonstrate and inspire these characteristics by example to his enamoured and eternally grateful son.
